Collin the Lanternfish and the Light of Friendship

In appreciation to Dalle, you'll be a beautiful muse.
by C.P. Crayon

Collin the lanternfish, once afraid of the dark,

Now faced deep depths

Unable to glow, and confined to his sunny home,

Where wild beasts and hungry sharks

LARKED!

Unable to glow, and confined to his sunny home

With courage, he'd find friends and a bright light of his own

One day, he left home with a sigh and a plan,

To make friends and face fears, with rhymes as he swam.

But as the water got darker,

He swam far and wide, his heart full of hope,

In search of a town and friendships to scope.

But as the water
got darker

He stumbled into their den and shivered in fear

And that's just when a magical lantern appeared!

This lantern started to tingle, and as it got very bright. ...

It exploded that BEAST back into the shadows of the NIGHT!!

He saved little Bert, a friend he'd defend,

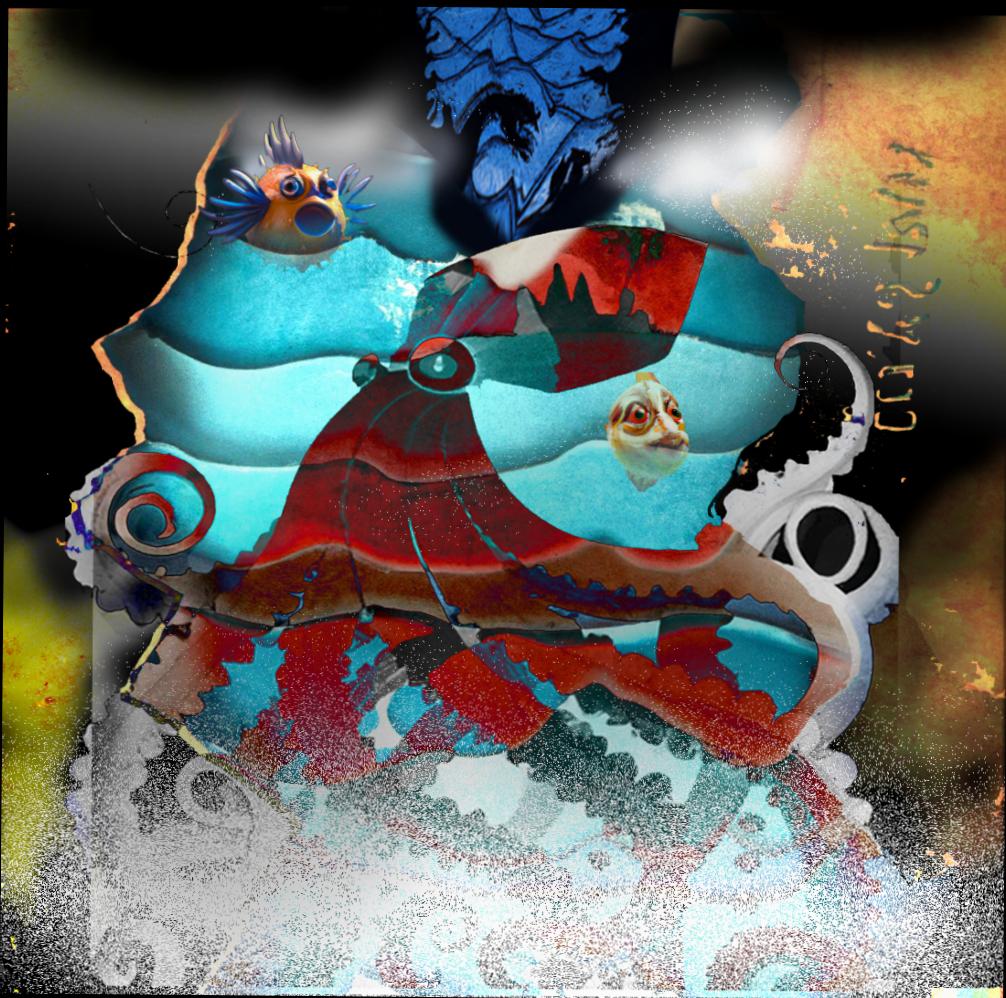

"Help me save my city?" Collin agreed in the end.

The second beast emerged,
but they didn't flinch,

The lantern tingled and glowed, making the beast wince.

The lantern started to tingle, and as it
got very bright ...

it lit that BEAST up, with the power of 1 000 NIGHTLIGHTS

With the second beast gone, they saved Bert's friends with glee,

And led Collin and Bert to defeat the last beast, you see.

The lantern started to tingle, and as it
got very bright ...

The shadow BEASTS vanished, broken apart from Collin's light

Remember Collin and Bert, and the magical lantern that glows,

For with friends by your side and courage
as your guide,
Together you'll conquer the dark, side by side.
